Hopeful news from Zenith research

You may find that you can hear better, make more sense out of the sounds you hear or enjoy the benefits of a hearing aid for the first time.

Thousands of men and women with problems just like yours have solved the problem and are once again enjoying the world of "Living Sound" with:

ACOUSTIC MODIFIER — helps many people who "hear but don't understand." It's a new kind of ear-connector for use with most hearing aids, with a built-in chamber. It filters out disturbing sounds. Word-discrimination is improved—you understand conversation because the "jumble" is reduced.

ZENITH DELEGATE — tiny behind-the-ear hearing aid weighing only 1/4 oz. with battery. Emphasizes the sounds you probably have difficulty hearing.

Try these new Zenith advances at your dealer's soon. He's listed in the "Yellow Pages." For the newest and best in hearing aids, rely on Zenith's electronic leadership and its devotion to helping the hard-of-hearing.

Terry Beach Robes

These attractive beach robes really catch the teen-ager's eye. Take two large bath towels and sew together at top and sides, leaving neck and arm openings. Next cut out two or three felt feet which serve as pockets for lotion, glasses, etc. A tie-around cord belt may be added. These sell easily for $3.

Melody Smith

Shadow Boxes

I make very attractive shadow boxes from small foil pans that frozen pies are packaged in. Cut the centers from 6-inch plastic doily and fasten this along with one larger or 3 small plastic flowers and leaves to bottom of pie pan. Then crochet a small edge on inner and outer edge of doily in black crochet thread and either use thread to tie or glue this to top of pie pan. I make a hanger on back from crochet thread by pushing a threaded darning needle through plate and making a loop. I sell two of these as a pair for $1.

Mrs. Rowena Poet

Book Holder

I purchase wire book holders from stationery stores. I cover them with felt and embroider sides. They sell readily for $2 each.

Mrs. Robert Angevine

Curler Bags

To make an attractive curler bag that sells easily for $1, cut two thicknesses of material 8 x 14 inches. The second piece will be used as lining. Fold two thicknesses in half and sew up side and bottom seams, making bag 7 inches wide and 8 inches tall. Put drawstring at top and add lace, ruffles or rickrack as desired for trim. These curler bags sell quickly at bazaars.

Mrs. Richard Skov

The WORKBASKET pays $2 for each short article accepted for this department. Material should concern specific women who have found ways to add to the family income. Address all contributions to Women Who Make Cents, The WORKBASKET, 543 Westport Road, Kansas City, Missouri 64111. No contributions to this department will be returned.

Quick Baby Bibs

I buy inexpensive washcloths to make into cute baby bibs. Fold each in half and cut a neck-hole 2-inches deep and 3-inches in from outer edges. Trim with bias tape, leaving tie ends of about 12-inches. Turn up 2-inches on bottom edge and sew along sides. Tack with a stitch or two in the middle, giving baby a catch-all. Trim with rickrack or decorate with sailboats, animals, jet planes or lollipop trees. I wrap them in clear plastic bags. They sell readily in gift shops for 25c each, depending on designs and materials used.

Mrs. Jean Kaesela

Bath Set

I cut large floral designs from pretty cotton prints and appliqué to one end of turkish bath towels. Cut out a small design from same print and appliqué to one corner of face cloth to match towel. Crochet both ends of towel and around edge of face cloth. Lovely color combinations can be used to harmonize towel, appliqué and crochet edges. Brides especially love these colorful sets. I sell them for $3.50 to $4.50 a set, depending on size of towel.

Strawberry Preserves

- 2 cups prepared fruit (about 1-quart ripe strawberries)
- 4 cups (1¾-pounds) sugar
- ¾ cup water
- 1 box powdered fruit pectin

First, prepare the fruit. Thoroughly crush, 1 layer at a time, about 1-quart fully ripe strawberries. Measure 2 cups into a large bowl or pan.

Then make the jam. Measure sugar, add to fruit, mix well, and let stand. Mix water and fruit pectin in a small saucepan. Bring to a boil and boil 1 minute, stirring constantly. Stir into fruit mixture. Continue stirring about 3 minutes. (There will be a few remaining sugar crystals). Ladle quickly into glasses. Cover at once with tight lids. When jam is set (may take up to 24 hours), store in freezer. If jam will be used within 2 or 3 weeks, it may be stored in the refrigerator. Yields about 6 medium (8-ounce) glasses.

How can I start a new plant from an oleander? I have tried slipping them as I would a geranium but have not been successful. Mrs. H. A. O., Kansas.

Oleander cuttings, either from soft or hard wood, root rather easily. They may be started in water and then potted or they may be planted in a cutting box of coarse sand. Cuttings of rather firm wood three or four inches long kept moist in a covered, lightly shaded box of sand will soon root.

We have two tree peonies and for two years one or two buds have appeared on each but they never open. This year we opened a bud and found it dead and brown inside. Our other peonies are doing well. What is the matter with these? Mrs. O. H. H., Michigan.

Your tree peonies may be affected by stem-wilt. The wilt is caused by cankers which girdle the stems at the base, cutting off the water supply. Young buds, just ready to open, turn brown and hang on the plant for a long time. It might be that the flower buds are killed and turn brown because they have been frosted. This is a common trouble with growing tree peonies where frosts occur after spring growth has started.

What is the best method of growing native, wild lady slippers from seeds? Could I possibly raise them on my window-sill? Mrs. C.E.T., Indiana

Seed from the wild lady slippers is so fine and so much of it is sterile that short of using laboratory methods I fear the plants could not be started. They could not be cultivated successfully in the window garden. For one thing the plants require a period of dormancy following their growth cycle. Propagation is secured by root divisions. The divisions may be potted and started into growth on the window-sill but after they are established they should be transplanted to the garden.

Would you please give me directions on how to slip and care for a calla lily begonia? M. C., New York.

The calla lily begonia is probably a sport of the common begonia and like it can be propagated by cuttings. Take cuttings from the base of the plant, where the leaves are mostly green. Root them in sand or vermiculite the same as other cuttings. Caring for this begonia is difficult. It should be in good soil that drains well. The plant is most sensitive to excess water and should be watered moderately and never heavily. Give it all the light possible short of direct sunlight. Once established leave it undisturbed. It takes a great deal of experimenting to find the conditions of light, heat and moisture best suited to the calla lily begonia, in each locality. Once established, this begonia will flourish for years.

Please give me some information about caring for a Bird of Paradise lily. Does it need a lot of water? Sun or shade? When will it bloom if kept as a house plant? Mrs. R. J. L., Oregon

Paradise lily, St. Bruno's lily, is a hardy plant, growing in any good garden soil. It prefers a partially shaded area, and does best in rich, loose, rather moist soil. Either in the garden or as a house plant it should bloom in late spring. A plant grown in a pot plunged in the cold frame to be lifted and brought indoors in early spring should make an excellent pot plant.

How can I get rid of toadstools on my lawn? They come up where an old tree was cut down. Mrs. T.M., Minnesota Toadstools are fungi that are busily engaged in consuming dead vegetable matter. As the dead tree stump and roots decay, the food supply for the fungi will be gone and the toadstools will disappear. The mycelium serving as roots of the fungus of the commoner meadow mushrooms do not flourish under highly acid conditions. An application of aluminum sulphate over the area will discourage their growth. However if you simply remove them, in time they will cease to appear. Better still, take a specimen to a mycologist and have it identified. It is almost certain to be a meadow mushroom and delectable eating. However, find out from some one who knows for it is not a food with which to experiment.

I have a gardenia plant which drops its buds. What can be done to prevent this? Mrs. B. O., Pennsylvania Conditions causing gardenias to drop their buds include dry atmosphere, cloudy weather, low night temperature and drying at the roots. High humidity is hard to maintain and this is the major cause of bud drop. Regular watering and frequent syringing is necessary during bright summer days. Inadequate sunlight during periods of cloudy weather is often the cause of failure and there is little that can be done about it. Before frost bring gardenia plants indoors. Place them in a light place where the temperature is around 50°. In May plunge the pots outdoors in full sun.

How can I eradicate Canada thistles? A. C. D., Ohio

The roots of Canada thistles grow deep and spread in every direction and new plants form at frequent intervals. If left a few plants will soon cover a large area. A spray containing amino triazole will kill the plants if it is applied while they are in active growth. Ammate weed and brush killer sprays will also control them. The regular 2,4-D if used at intervals should eradicate this pest. The first spray should be applied when the plants are in bud. As new shoots appear they should be sprayed when they reach 4 or 5 inches in height. One full season of careful spraying should eliminate this weed.

Paint a Spring Picture with Tulips

Dorothy Schroeder

Tulips are just another word for spring to many gardeners. Planted well they take over the garden every spring for at least two months of beauty, and since they can be depended upon for years of blooming it behooves us to make that extra effort.

Take a good look at your soil before setting out tulips. If light, plant deep; nine inches to one foot. If heavy stiff clay, plant about six inches deep.

Tulips make your garden look like spring.

Be sure drainage is good. Tulips lying in water rot and never appear at all. Put a scoopful of bone meal into the hole for each bulb, then a trowelful of rich soil (compost if you have it). Over this scatter a little sand to cushion and protect bulb from excess moisture. Now put in bulb with a twisting motion to anchor firmly into soil and help roots take hold. Trouble? Yes, a little, but remember you are planting for permanence. Tulips that "run out" are all too often haphazardly started. Planted this way it is unnecessary to mulch them.

Save a few bulbs for winter blooming indoors. Plant them four inches deep in rich soil in large pots. Bury these in a foot-deep trough on north side of house. Pile a few armfuls of hay over them. After eight weeks of winter weather lift hay cautiously, so as not to break emerging growth. Pick pot that shows best growth and bring in house to progress slowly in a cool but bright basement window. When buds show color bring upstairs. Still keeping as cool as possible, put in a bright place to bloom. I find that it helps to mist leaves two or three times a week with clothes sprinkler.

It will be pure chance whether blooming of your tulips coincides with a holiday until you've gained a little experience forcing them. Later you'll find you hit it right on the nose nine times out of ten.

Bulbs can't be used a second time for indoor blooming, but can be planted outside the following fall.

After outdoor tulips have faded, be sure to cut off flower heads. Strength that bulbs need would otherwise go into making of seeds. Do not, however, cut away foliage until completely wilted, for it is necessary for the health of the bulb that it completes growth and dies down.

When tulip flowers begin to get smaller and "widows" appear, single leaves that have no blooms attached, it is time to dig them up and divide them. Dig them carefully with garden fork, clean, sort and put on shallow trays covered with burlap to rest. You'll find dozens of bulblets. Save and set them out in rows along edge of garden. It will take about three years of growing for them to come into bloom.

In fall replant the adult bulbs. They take a new lease on life.

Which bulbs to buy? The catalogs are full of beauties and choice is limited only by the limitations of your budget. Let me suggest three oldies. that are very dependable, long-lasting, beautiful, and because they are old, more reasonable than most. These are Clara Butt, Reverend Eubank, and the City of Haarlem. They have bloomed for fourteen years in my garden without having to be disturbed and are still large, lovely and healthy.

Passiflora-Alato Caerulea

Marjorie Plue

Passiflora (passion vine) is a native of tropical America. It is a twining vine with flowers of intricate beauty which are about four inches in diameter with subtle shadings of pink, blue, purple and white. It is grown extensively in Bermuda by manufacturers who make it into perfume. Tourists buy this to remind them of the flowers' beauty.

When Spaniards first saw it, they were very impressed by its beauty. They saw in it a resemblance to the Crucifixion. The ten petals represent the ten Apostles present at the Crucifixion — Peter, who denied, and Judas, who betrayed, being excluded. The corona, or crown, represents the crown of thorns. The five anthers suggest the five wounds or hammers used to drive the nails.

The flowers are followed by purple fruits which are edible. Since it is not hardy north of Philadelphia, it may be cut back to about 10 inches, placed in a pot and brought inside for winter. It is best to leave a 2 inch space between soil and top of pot. In early winter it requires a period of rest and should be kept on the dry side. Later in winter when new growth begins, it may be given more water. While it is not necessary to repot at this time, it is very helpful to add enough fresh soil to fill pot.

When weather permits, it may again be placed in garden, setting pot into soil. If plant is set directly into soil, care must be taken in cultivating since the roots grow close to surface. It needs some support to climb. It enjoys a fairly rich soil and will endure some shade.

It may be propagated by rooting tip cuttings in moist sand. Plants may also be started from seeds, and if started early enough in winter will bloom first season. These seedlings require as much sunlight as possible.

There are many varieties of passiflora of various color combinations. All are beautiful and worthwhile. When in bloom, I know of few flowers which attract more attention in a garden.

Pebble Mosaic Tea Tile

Willard and Elma Waltner

Are you tempted to pick up those smooth pebbles on the beach, along the lake shore or even on your gravel drive? Now you can, with a purpose, and turn them into attractive tea tiles.

It is easier to keep pebbles of different colors separated as you pick them up. Use a small box or paper bag for each color. Pebbles should be no more than $\frac{1}{4}$ inch thick and at least one side should be fairly flat and smooth. Wash and dry them before using. Lay them out on a table and juggle them around to make a design you like.

As a base in which to make the tile you will need the tin lid of a coffee can or a 3-pound shortening can. For an interesting free form tile you might use the top of a canned ham container.

Water putty is used as the cement in which the pebble mosaic is set. We used Durham's rock-hard water putty, which is available at lumberyards and hardware stores. Mix putty with water to consistency of very heavy cream. Spoon it into lid until it is about $\frac{1}{8}$ inch in depth (see photograph 1). Smooth off top surface of putty. Place the pebbles in putty smooth side up and side by side as close together as possible.

Photograph 1

After main design is in place, fill in rest of lid with contrasting colored pebbles. If design is in light-colored pebbles, surround it with dark ones (photograph 2). You may wish to have an outside border of mottled pebbles. Instead of working out a design, you may want to use different-colored ones in a hit-or-miss fashion. If you do not get them placed to suit you the first time, pick them out, rinse off and blot dry, then set them again.

Photograph 2

The putty will harden in about an hour, holding pebbles firmly in place. After it has hardened you may paint the putty in spaces between the rocks with watercolor if you wish (see photograph 3 of finished tea tile).

Beauty from the Sea

Pat Zanotelli

Have you ever wished for an easy, fun way to add sparkling new color and interest to your home? Then why not try decorating with seashells? The uses you'll find for these beautiful gifts from the sea will be limited only by your imagination.

If you live near the ocean, obtaining shells won't be any problem for a walk on the beach will net you a large variety. Scrub them well with soap and water; boil and clean inside of shell thoroughly. Sometimes vacationing friends will be willing to gather shells for you or any hobby shop carries a good supply of shells which are clean and ready for use.

You'll need a tube of cement (special shellcraft cements are sold at hobby shops), good tweezers, cotton, toothpicks and a supply of tiny beads.

You can brighten a boy's room (and delight a young boy) by decorating his lampshade with a sea horse, complete with tiny "air bubbles" above his head as if he's just swimming by. First cover shade with burlap (a neutral color will best show off the shells and can be used with any color scheme) and firmly cement the edges. Use a plain shade because any pattern would show through when the light is on. With contrasting color yarn work a blanket stitch around top and bottom edges of shade. Arrange sea horse and shells on a table for the finished design. Using tweezers, soak a tuft of cotton in cement, stick to lampshade, then press sea horse into cotton. This holds better and helps give a three-dimensional effect. Don't use too much cotton; you don't want edges to show on finished picture. Glue a few tiny beads above sea horse for air bubbles. Glue other shells in place (using cotton under them, too), let dry and the lampshade is ready for use.

To make a decorative tray, use a large clam shell, sandpaper any rough edges, then paint with gilt paint. Put glue-soaked cotton along upper edge of shell and press tiny shells on edge into the cotton so they look like flower petals. Glue one or two tiny "dewdrop" pearls onto flowers and holder is complete.

Shells can be used on inexpensive straw bags to turn them into gay knitting bags or carryalls. To decorate a straw bag, glue shells in place with cotton under them, then catch heavier ones in place with needle and thread. Next, wrap entire bag with a red net onion or potato bag to signify a fisherman's net. Stitch edges to hold net in place.

Unusual shell pictures of any size can be created and designed to decorate any room in your home. Small framed seashell flower pictures look well in kitchen or bedroom. Big, bold arrangements of shells in a large frame make conversation pieces in living room, den or recreation room. The variety of pictures you can create with shells is endless.

Masonite board, rough side out, makes an inexpensive and interesting textured background for shells. It can be used alone or cut to fit inside a picture frame. You can perhaps paint it sky blue to show off some delicately-colored shell flowers or paint it to blend in with a room color. Burlap of any color can be wrapped around Masonite board and framed to provide a background.

When making a framed picture, glue all shells to outside of glass to provide an illusion of depth. Shellacking shells when picture is completed will bring out their natural beauty and color.

Shellcraft projects are interesting and easy to do. Besides using them to brighten your own home, they make welcome gifts for friends. Many people find a ready market for shellcraft items they decide to sell. Once you start working with shells, you'll discover for yourself why this is one of the most popular and enjoyable of the major crafts today.

Here's a solution for those pesky little buttons that tear off of garments and take a bit of the material with them. You can reinforce the fabric with a small piece of iron-on tape in a color that matches the garment. Sew the button to the tape and when the shirt, blouse, etc., is buttoned, no one can tell it has been mended.

Cloverleaf Tatted Edging for Handkerchief

Another lovely edging to add a touch of beauty to your linen handkerchiefs. You will need a ball of white tatting thread, a tatting shuttle, a size 13 steel crochet hook for joining thread to handkerchief edge and a linen handkerchief.

FURNITURE REFINISHING AT HOME

Nina Glenn Joyner

(91 pages, illustrated; Chilton Company, 59th and Chestnut, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania)

Written in a breezy, easy to understand style, this book makes the reader feel as though Miss Joyner were standing at his elbow, personally directing the project at hand. Wisely, she starts by discussing the sort of furniture which an amateur may safely try to refinish himself and the sort which should be either left alone, or done by professionals.

Miss Joyner describes and lists the various tools needed by the amateur refinisher and, then, using an old dry sink as an example, carefully goes through each refinishing step on the project. She also discusses painting and antiquing "not-so-old" furniture.

Miss Joyner's suggestions are all practical, i.e. using mosaics to brighten up an otherwise hopeless table, refinishing old and dull picture frames, painting trays, etc.

And one really up-to-date chapter deals with the use of synthetic materials in making furniture.

Lastly, the author lists and describes the various types of woods which the amateur refinisher is apt to run across. This is an extremely practical book for the beginning refinisher and Miss Joyner's style of writing on the subject adds much to its value.

CREATIVE CANVAS EMBROIDERY

Bucky King

(Hearthside Press, Inc., 118 East 28 St., N. Y., New York 10016; illustrated; 125 pages; $4.95)

Here is a book designed for the beginner creating her first canvas or for the advanced embroiderer eager to learn more. Mrs. King has combined all her knowledge into an easy-to-follow guide.

This well-illustrated book contains the basic techniques of canvas embroidery, preparing the canvas, advice on threads, needles, colors, stitch selection, mounting, blocking, finishing details and correcting mistakes. Fifty stitches are clearly illustrated so that even beginners will find them easily worked.

One chapter is devoted to originality. Those who desire to create original designs will find helpful hints on principles of design, including color schemes, putting designs on canvas, and designing for home, personal and ecclesiastical adornment.

This ancient but newly popular craft can be more than a delightful and rewarding hobby. To many needleworkers it is a profession. Several inspiring sections are included in this informative book for teachers or exhibitors of canvas embroidery.

CREATIVE CANVAS EMBROIDERY should be included in the library of every needleworker. It would prove to be an invaluable aid.

THE SPICE SAMPLER

Edith M. Barber

(62 pages, illustrated; Sterling Publishing Co., Inc., 419 Fourth Ave., New York, New York)

Ever long for a way to add something different to that old familiar recipe? Wish you could earn a reputation for cooking exotic dishes? Perhaps you've thought of experimenting with spices and herbs but felt confused about which herb to use in what recipe. If this is the case, then your problems are solved.

Miss Barber who was formerly Food Editor of the New York Sun and is presently Food Editor for General Features Syndicate is an able author on the subject of using herbs in cooking. And just to get you off to the proper start, sample packets of a few herbs and spices are included in the book itself.

After a short dictionary of spices and herbs, the author begins her recipes. Divisions of the cookbook are listed under headings of Appetizers, Soups, Beverages, Meats, Fish, Luncheon Dishes, Leftovers, Sauces Vegetables, Pickled and Spiced Fruits and Vegetables, Salads and Dressings, Breads and Rolls, Cakes and Cookies, Desserts and Pies.

As the variety of divisions hints, there is something in this small cookbook for almost every taste. Some of the dishes are merely variations of the old simple recipes with which most of us are already familiar. Others, however, are quite a bit out of the ordinary, and all promise to bring more adventure into your daily cooking chores.

Removal of Stains

To remove spots and stains successfully from fabrics always treat stain or spot while it is still fresh. Try to find out what caused the stain or spot. By doing this you will know exactly what treatment to use. The proper treatment usually depends on type of fabric, so be sure to find out the kind of fabric stained and if it is washable or must be dry cleaned. Don't use hot water unless the prescribed treatment specifically calls for it. To make sure that the stain remover will not cause the color in fabric to run, test it first on a hidden part of the fabric. Never allow a stain remover to dry on the fabric. One of the exceptions to this rule is carbon tetrachloride. Always neutralize alkalies such as ammonia water, washing soda or baking soda with acids such as lemon juice or vinegar and vice versa. To avoid a ring, "feather out" or dampen area around stain until there is no sharply defined edge when fabric dries. Pat stain with a dry cloth. Never rub stain remover directly into stain if it can be prevented.

Adhesive Tape and Chewing Gum—

—For white cottons and linen apply ice or soak in very cold water. Scrape off as much gummy material as possible. Sponge with good cleaning fluid then launder in hot water and detergent.

For other washable fabrics and colored cottons follow same procedure as white cottons, using water temperature to suit fabric.

Crayon—For white cottons and linen apply detergent directly to dampened stain and rub in well until outline of stain is gone, then rinse well. Repeat, if necessary. It may help to dry fabric between treatments. If this treatment is not practical at the time, for an immediate method try a good cleaning fluid. Follow later by laundering with detergent and hot water.

For other washable fabrics and colored cottons use same procedure as for white cottons but launder with detergent and water of a temperature to suit fabric.

Candle Wax—

For white cottons and linen rub stain with ice and gently scrape. Then place stain between clean white blotters or several layers of facial tissue and press with warm iron to remove remaining stain. Pour boiling water through spot if safe for fabric or sponge with good cleaning fluid.

For other washable fabrics and colored cottons follow same procedure as for white cottons, but do not use boiling water.

(Stubborn Stains)—

For white cottons and linen if stain is fresh, rub detergent into dampened stain and wash. Repeat. If stain has dried or is only partially removed by washing, sponge with turpentine. While stain is still wet with solvent, work detergent into it, put article in hot water and soak overnight. If stain remains, repeat treatment.

For other washable fabrics and colored cottons use same procedure as for white cottons.
